The Prospects for the Winter.
He who runs may read. It is easy to see that trade is not in a satisfactory condition. The indications are that we are verging upon a dull hard winter. We speak not of our own city particularly. Here things are in as good a shape as anywhere else in the country, and much better than most places. But even here we need not expect an exceptional condition of things in our favor. Wheeling is a manufacturing city and her prosperity is bound up with that of the great West. The West is not buying the amount of merchandise this Fall that she did last year. This is not only the case as respects all sorts of iron manufacture, but in every other department of trade. The tone of the Eastern papers plainly shows that sales there to the West have been light. The great dry goods houses, for instance, have not done the business this Fall that they generally expected to do. This failure to realize expectations has, of course, tended to demoralize the feeling in business circles generally, and has made the banks more stringent in their accommodations to those needing assistance to enable them to tide over a dull season. Hence some ugly failures have taken place recently and no doubt more will follow.

While this is the situation of business as regards its present status and immediate prospects, we are firmly convinced that we are passing through the closing scenes of the panic, and that the day of reanimation draws nigh. By next spring the great remedial ordeal of diminished production will have done its work. The country will be nearer bare in the way of stocks of merchandise than at any time for many years. This fact, together with a lower range of prices, enabling us to much easier to keep out foreign importations, will start the upward turn in trade in the spring on a reliable basis, and give manufacturers ground that they can stand on for some time to come.

We find the following paragraph in the last Morgantown Post in regard to the Sage of Preston, who who foretold the Post has complimented as the "wheel horse" of Democracy in that region:
The defeat of Wm. G. Brown for Legislative honors is one of the results of the late election that is not calculated to bring tears from the eyes of either party. As a politician "uncle Billy" is completely "played out." Nobody has any confidence in him.

We rather think the above may be called timely, although as a matter of reproof it comes to Uncle Billy late in the day; too late to be of much service to him or his constituents. Years ago we took occasion to express ourselves freely upon Uncle Billy as a champion trimmer and dodger, and time has but strengthened the sentiments then expressed. ALEX. H. STRANZ said in his speech in Congress last winter that all statesmen were necessarily demagogues to a certain extent. We recognize the force of this remark, and are inclined to allow all men who have to deal with the "inconstant multitude" considerable leeway. But Uncle Billy is all way. There is nothing else to be written of him when he dies save that he was one grand leeway. He will go down to fame as the man who while a member of the Virginia Constitutional Convention of 1850 and of the Congress of the United States from 1861 up to 1865, probably dodged more votes than any member of either body. Like BEN WILSON, he was a famous hand for watching how the cat was going to jump. He has been watching cats throughout his political career. Statesmen do not make cats their principal study in life. Occasionally, like good old M. A. S., they speak unto the children of Israel to go forward, and put themselves in the lead. Uncle Billy BROWN would have made the poorest sort of a Moses. The children of Israel would have been tramping around in the wilderness to this day if he had been their Moses. JACK DOWNING said that VAN BUREN's statesmanship consisted in the faculty of lending by the "tail hold." So far as Uncle Billy has any statesmanship, it is of this order. He has had hold of the tails of both the Democracy and the Republicans a good deal within the last few years, but it was with a view of having them lead him out of the woods of Preston into office, rather than to give direction to either party for the good of the public. But although Mr. BROWN carried Preston county in the late election, and although Uncle Billy seemed to have his usual hold on the Republican tail, the noble animal refused to do duty this time, and actually "turned tail" on the venerable aspirant in the most uncompromising manner. We are sorry for this result, but at the same time, when we think that it will probably result to Uncle Billy's spiritual welfare, we are reconciled.

Wool in New York has been a little shaky in price, as compared with a week ago. There is a scarcity in the highest grades, however, which promises advantages to the holders of such fine. A few very good Ohio fleeces have been sold during the past week at a shade lower price. The weakening in price stimulated sales somewhat. Double extra, 57c; extra, 55c; medium western, 53c; No. 1 western, 53c; black fleece, 45c; unwashed, 50c; extra pulled, 40c; Western Texas, 21c; secured do, 50c.

This report of the Bureau of Statistics for the current month gives United States imports and exports for seven months. Allowing for the difference in the warehouse account, the exports for the seven months ending July 31, 1874, exceeded the imports $12,025,731, while for the corresponding period of 1873 the imports exceeded the exports by $52,956,551.

Now Joe Medill is disposed of as a candidate for President. He is nothing but a bloody foreigner, after all. Born in the British provinces somewhere, and came to Massillon, Ohio, in 1832. His father died and his mother still lives in Canton.

Thoughts from the Talmud.
(From the Jewish Messenger.)
Do not dwell too long on your friend's praises; you will end in saying things against him. Do much or little, so that you do it for a good purpose. Refused music is liked by refined people; weavers do not care much for it. Three cry out, but get no pity, viz: he who lends out his money without witness, the henpecked husband, and he who cannot get into one place and does not try another. Even the common talk of the wise should be pondered over. One goose generally follows another. The load is laid upon the camel according to its strength. If a camel is worth a pound, silence is worth two. A pig is the richest animal; everything is a piece of goods to him. Whoever does too much does too little. The greater the man the greater his passions. He who presses the hour, the hour will press him. May our future reward be like that of him who remains silent under false imputation. One pepper-corn is worth a thousand gourds. A learned man whose deeds are evil, is like a man who has a door and no house. He who plays for his neighbor will be heard for himself. He who marries his daughter to an uneducated man, throws her before a wild beast. He who throws out suspicions should be at once suspected himself. Three who keep good fellowship—strangers, slaves and ravens. A fool always rushes to the fore. Do not cry out before the calamity has really happened. If a man says something useful, beware to mock at it wantonly. Passion is at first like a thin reed; by-and-by it becomes like a cable.
